History of perming

People have been curling their hair for more then 4,000 years. Curly hair was popular in times of the Roman Empire, later also in the times of Renaissance and Baroque. Curly hair, either natural curls or permed hair, was very popular in the 1980s too.

The original way of perming was very simple. The discovery of borax in the 1920s was a turning point in perming hair. After the cecond World War people started having a „cold perm“ which used chemicals at room temperature, and took 6-8 hours to complete. The biggest advantage of perming is that it adds volume and shape to even the finest of hair.

The advanced chemical technology has made the perm proces much easier on hair. By varying the size of rods and strength of solutions, a stylist can give the client a variety of looks: big loose curls, waves or ringlets.

After perming, hair may be drier and less shiny due to the chemicals used. Therefore i tis important to treat the hair well affter perming by using a moisturising shampoo and conditioner and products designed for permed hair.
